The author of the account used the book as a text to him. Obviously that was the rough copy which he took from him to Cairo. That's how it came into the Geniza. (His <sup>own</sup> <sup>hand</sup> <sup>here</sup> a little

I have the impression that the book is younger than Abraham P. P. He had brought pepper from India. Another sending of pepper(?) or sent from Kullain to G.

Ym deals with its selling.

As far as we can see, too inaccurate:

1) The total of the <sup>book</sup> was 220, but 216.2

2) The grand total 919 and (or note 915.2

and with 927.

Such inaccuracies are very frequent
